FLIGHT GUIDELINES POST-VEIN TREATMENT: WHEN IS IT SAFE TO FLY?

How Soon Can You Fly After Vein Treatment?

Traveling after vein treatment can raise concerns about deep vein thrombosis (DVT), a potentially serious complication. The prolonged sitting involved in flying or long car rides can impair venous flow in the legs, which is already a risk factor for DVT. When combined with recent vein treatment, this risk can increase. To minimize the chance of developing a DVT, it's important to follow medical advice and take preventive measures after your procedure. At the Central Florida Vein & Vascular Center, our experts prioritize your safety and will guide you through your recovery process.

What Is Deep Vein Thrombosis (DVT)?

Deep vein thrombosis is a condition where a blood clot forms in one of the deep veins, most commonly in the legs. DVT can lead to swelling, pain, and other complications. The primary concern is that a clot may break off and travel to the lungs, causing a pulmonary embolism, a life-threatening situation. While the risk of developing DVT post-vein treatment is low, air travel can increase this risk due to restricted movement and decreased blood flow.

How Long Should You Wait to Fly After Varicose Vein Procedures

We recommend waiting at least 7 days before flying or taking long car trips after minimally invasive vein treatments. This precaution allows your body time to heal and return to its pre-treatment baseline risk of DVT. While modern vein therapies are highly effective and safe, giving your body this recovery window is essential for reducing potential complications.

Why Air Travel Increases DVT Risk

Long periods of sitting—whether on an airplane or during a car ride—can cause sluggish venous flow, increasing the chance of blood clots. A study published by the CDC found that air travelers on flights lasting 4 hours or longer have a 2-3 times higher risk of DVT. Though the risk remains small, combining this with recent vein treatment necessitates extra caution.

Tips for Safe Travel After Vein Treatment

If you need to fly soon after your vein procedure, follow these tips to lower your risk of DVT and keep your legs healthy during travel:

1. Wear Compression Socks

Compression socks help improve blood flow by applying gentle pressure to your legs. These socks are designed to have graduated pressure, meaning the tightest point is at the ankle, and the pressure decreases up the leg. Wearing compression socks during long trips helps reduce venous stasis (sluggish blood flow) and prevent blood clots. According to a 2018 study published in The Lancet, wearing compression socks can decrease the risk of DVT in travelers by up to 65%.

2. Hydrate Properly

Staying hydrated is crucial for healthy blood flow. Dehydration can thicken the blood, making clots more likely to form. While it may be tempting to limit water intake to avoid frequent bathroom trips during travel, proper hydration helps maintain optimal circulation and reduces the risk of DVT.

3. Stay Active

Movement is key to preventing blood clots. If you're on a flight, try to get up and walk the aisle every hour, or at least whenever the seatbelt sign is off. Walking activates your calf muscles, helping the blood in your legs flow more efficiently back to your heart. If walking isn't possible, perform simple in-seat exercises like heel raises to keep the calf muscles engaged and promote circulation.

4. Avoid Tight Clothing

Tight clothing can constrict blood flow, especially around the waist and legs. Opt for loose, comfortable clothing to prevent restricting your circulation during travel.

Safe Travels

Taking a trip after vein treatment requires careful planning to ensure you avoid complications like DVT. By waiting at least 7 days post-procedure and following key preventive strategies—such as wearing compression socks, staying hydrated, and moving regularly—you can significantly reduce your risk. Consult with your vein specialist for personalized advice based on your health status and travel plans.

Talk Turkey and Your Family's Health History This Thanksgiving

Thanksgiving is traditionally a time to gather with loved ones, express gratitude and enjoy a festive meal. This year, November 28 is also designated as National Family Health History Day. The U.S. surgeon general encourages families to take advantage of this time together to talk about health issues that may run in the family.

Knowing one's family medical history can help in the prevention and early detection of hereditary diseases. By sharing and recording this information, individuals can better understand their potential risks for certain diseases, including cancer, heart disease, diabetes and other conditions that have genetic components.

Genetics and cancer risk

About 5 to 10 percent of cancers are linked to mutations in specific genes that we inherit from our birth parents. In fact, the five most common types of cancer diagnosed in the U.S. are known to have a genetic component. These are melanoma (a form of skin cancer), breast, colorectal, prostate and lung cancers.

Consider skin cancer, for example. People with a first-degree relative who has been diagnosed with melanoma or other types of skin cancer have a 50 percent higher chance of developing it than someone without a family history. A first-degree relative includes your biological parents, siblings and children, who share about 50 percent of your DNA.

Breast cancer is the second most common cancer in American women, representing approximately 30 percent of all new cancer diagnoses among women each year. And although it's rare, men get breast cancer, too.

Mutations that occur in the BRCA1 and BRCA2 genes can significantly increase the risk of breast as well as ovarian cancer. People with a strong family history of breast cancer, especially if it occurs at a young age or in multiple relatives, may carry one of these genetic mutations.

While having a genetic mutation does not guarantee that a person will develop cancer, it does increase the risk.

Genetic counseling and genetic DNA testing are a proactive approach to understanding your health risks and may be recommended for individuals with a family history associated with known genetic mutations.

If someone knows they have inherited a harmful genetic change, they can take steps to reduce their risk of developing cancer or to detect cancer early. Genetic testing can also be appropriate for people who have been diagnosed with cancer. The information may be important for selecting treatment.

Anyone who is concerned that they may have inherited a harmful genetic change should talk with their health care provider.

Genetic counseling will include a discussion of the implications of testing so that someone can give informed consent to the process. Before having testing, people should discuss both the benefits and the possible downsides of genetic testing.

The importance of lifestyle factors

It's important to remember, however, that the majority of cancers arise due to a combination of factors, including environmental exposures (such as smoking or radiation) and spontaneous genetic mutations that occur during a person's life.

There are ways to reduce cancer risk:

- Protect your skin from harmful UV rays from the sun and other sources.
- Don't smoke. The carcinogens in tobacco can damage nearly every organ in the body, increasing risk for cancer and other diseases.
- Maintain a diet high in fruits, vegetables, beans and whole grains and low in red meat, processed foods and sugar.
- Limit alcohol consumption.
- Aim for at least 30 minutes of physical activity daily to help control your weight and avoid obesity and give a healthy boost to your immune system.
- Stay current with screenings. Generally, when cancer is detected in its early stages, treatment is less extensive, outcomes are improved and recovery is faster. Screenings are safe, effective and vital. Talk with your primary health care provider to make the best personal decisions about your health status, the benefits and any risks of testing, and how often you should be screened.

What's your family health portrait?

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services offers tools like the "My Family Health Portrait," which helps families collect and organize their health information and learn more about the risk for conditions that can run in families.

This holiday season, be sure to pass the pie, along with some details of your family's health history.

Diabetic Wound Care:

Harnessing the Power of Amniotic Membrane Technology

The management of diabetic wounds remains one of the most challenging aspects of modern healthcare, with complications potentially leading to severe outcomes including amputation. However, innovative treatments like amniotic membrane therapy from RxWound are revolutionizing the approach to diabetic wound care, offering new hope for patients struggling with chronic wounds.

Understanding the Power of Amniotic Membrane Technology

Amniotic membrane grafts represent a groundbreaking advancement in wound care treatment. Derived from the innermost layer of human placenta, these grafts are ethically sourced from planned cesarean section donations, ensuring both moral integrity and clinical excellence. The procurement process involves rigorous screening and testing for communicable diseases, maintaining the highest standards of safety and quality.

The impressive 95% success rate of patients attaining full wound closure within a six-week period, along with a minimal risk of negative side effects, establishes amniotic membrane therapy as a transformative advancement in wound care. This natural approach not only accelerates healing but also aligns with sustainable medical practices, making it an ideal choice for advanced wound management.

The Five Pillars of Healing Process

Amniotic membrane technology works through five fundamental mechanisms that synergistically promote optimal wound healing:

1. Reduced Inflammation: The membrane's natural anti-inflammatory properties help control excessive inflammation, which is particularly crucial for diabetic patients who often experience prolonged inflammatory responses. This regulation creates an optimal environment for healing to begin.

2. Powerful Antibacterial Properties: The inherent antibacterial characteristics of amniotic membrane provide a natural defense against pathogens, reducing the risk of infection without relying solely on conventional antibiotics. This is especially valuable given the rising concerns about antibiotic resistance.

3. Enhanced Tissue Growth Support: Rich in growth factors and essential proteins, the membrane actively promotes tissue regeneration and cellular proliferation. This support is vital for diabetic wounds, which typically struggle with delayed healing due to compromised cellular function.

4. Creation of Optimal Wound Healing Environment: The membrane maintains ideal moisture levels and provides necessary nutrients, creating a perfectly balanced environment for wound healing. This micro-environment supports cellular migration and proliferation, essential components of the healing process.

5. Effective Biological Barrier: Acting as a natural protective shield, the membrane creates a physical barrier against external contaminants while maintaining the wound's optimal healing environment. This dual-action protection is crucial for preventing complications in diabetic wounds.

Clinical Impact and Future Implications

The implementation of RxWound's extensive array of amniotic membrane solutions marks a significant advancement in diabetic wound care. Traditional treatments often struggle with the complexity of diabetic wounds, but this innovative approach addresses multiple aspects of wound healing simultaneously. The therapy's success rate demonstrates its potential to reduce healing time, decrease the risk of complications, and improve patient outcomes.

Healthcare providers report that patients receiving amniotic treatment experience faster healing rates and reduced complications compared to conventional treatments. The therapy's natural composition and lack of adverse effects make it an attractive option for patients who may be sensitive to synthetic treatments or those with compromised immune systems.

The sustainable and ethical sourcing of amniotic membranes, combined with their remarkable healing properties, positions RxWound as a leader in modern wound care solutions. As the medical community continues to seek effective treatments for diabetic wounds, the role of amniotic membrane therapy grows increasingly significant, offering hope for improved outcomes in this challenging aspect of healthcare.

PREVENTING DIABETIC EYE DISEASE WITH DIABETIC EYE EXAMS

November is Diabetic Eye Disease Awareness Month, drawing into focus how diabetes impacts the risk of developing certain eye diseases. Understanding these risks and being proactive in your own care can make a big difference in preventing, delaying and managing diabetic eye disease. First, let's look at the various eye conditions that can affect those with diabetes.

WHAT IS DIABETIC EYE DISEASE?

Diabetic eye disease isn't a single disease, but rather refers to a group of eye conditions that include:

1. Diabetic Retinopathy – The most common form of diabetic eye disease, diabetic retinopathy occurs when high blood sugar levels damage the blood vessels in the retina, which is the light-sensitive tissue at the back of the eye. In its early stage, called non-proliferative retinopathy (NDPR), weak blood vessels in the retina may leak, causing swelling of the macula, the part of the retina that processes central vision. In its advanced stage, proliferative retinopathy (PDR), new and abnormal blood vessels emerge. These vessels are fragile and prone to bleeding, which can damage vision.

Roughly 1/3 of people with diabetes can develop diabetic retinopathy, making it the #1 cause of blindness among working-age adults. Early diagnosis and intervention are crucial to preventing vision loss.

2. Diabetic Macular Edema (DME) – DME is a result of diabetic retinopathy, where fluid builds up in the eye, including under the macula, causing it to swell and thicken, distorting central vision. Central vision is needed to read, drive, watch TV, even recognize faces.

3. Associated Eye Conditions

- Cataracts – Although anyone can get a cataract, people with diabetes are 2-5 times more likely to develop them, often at an earlier age than non-diabetics.
- Glaucoma – Diabetes can double your risk of developing open-angle glaucoma. Having high blood sugar also increases the chance of developing neovascular glaucoma, wherein new, weak blood vessels in the eye block the drainage system, placing pressure on the optic nerve. In addition, having proliferative diabetic retinopathy is a leading cause of this vision-robbing disease.

WHAT ARE THE SYMPTOMS OF DIABETIC EYE DISEASE?

What's particularly frightening about diabetic eye diseases is that in their early stages, they often produce no symptoms at all. Once they progress, however, they can cause symptoms like:

- Blurred vision
- Spots or dark strings floating in vision (floaters)
- Dark or blank areas in vision
- Difficulty distinguishing colors
- Vision loss

WHAT CAUSES DIABETIC EYE DISEASE?

The main cause of diabetic eye disease is prolonged high blood sugar levels, which damage retinal blood vessels. Things that increase your risk of developing one or more of these diseases include: having prolonged diabetes, poor blood sugar control, high blood pressure, high cholesterol, and smoking. Being Black, Hispanic or Native American also increases this risk.

PREVENTING AND MANAGING DIABETIC EYE DISEASE

You can reduce your risk of developing diabetic eye disease, and slow its progression by following these guidelines:

1. Get Regular Diabetic Eye Exams – One of the most important ways to help prevent diabetic eye diseases from damaging your vision is through annual comprehensive eye exams. Early detection and treatment are crucial in preventing vision loss. In fact, early discovery of diabetic eye disease can reduce the risk of related severe vision loss by as much as 95%!

Because conditions like diabetic retinopathy and glaucoma often develop stealthily, regular diabetic eye exams are used to detect early signs of disease before symptoms arise. Most people with diabetes should see their eye doctor at least once a year. People with existing diabetic retinopathy or other problems may need more frequent visits. Follow your eye doctor's recommendations.

Your eye exam will include some or all of the following:

- Visual Acuity Testing: This assesses how well you can see at various distances to help detect changes in vision over time.
- Dilation: A dilated exam allows your doctor to closely examine your optic nerve and retina for changes or early signs of damage, such as bulging, leaking or bleeding blood vessels, swelling, or neovascularization (abnormal development of new blood vessels).
- Tonometry: This test measures intraocular pressure to screen for glaucoma.
- Advanced Testing: In some cases, the exam may also include advanced procedures such as digital retinal imaging or optical coherence tomography (OCT) for exceptionally detailed images of the retinas.

2. Manage Blood Glucose – Keeping blood sugar levels under control is essential in preventing damage to the blood vessels in the retina. Regular blood sugar monitoring and keeping HbA1c levels within target range can stop or slow the progression of eye disease.

Vow to:

- Take medications as prescribed
- Monitor blood sugar levels frequently

3. Regulate Blood Pressure and Cholesterol Levels – High blood pressure and cholesterol can exacerbate damage to the eyes' blood vessels. Managing elevated conditions through lifestyle changes and medication, if needed, can help protect your vision, as well as your heart.

4. Make Healthier Choices – Supporting healthy vision means being mindful of your lifestyle choices. Luckily, these choices can improve your overall health, too.

- Get in More Steps – Get moving at least 30 minutes, 5 times a week. Whether it's walking, dancing, swimming, golfing, gardening, yoga or playing pickleball, regular movement improves circulation, supports the immune system, and helps manage blood sugar.

- Maintain a Healthy Weight – Unless otherwise instructed by your doctor, try choosing more plant-based choices like whole fruit (not juice), especially low-GI fruits like avocados, bell peppers, berries, apples, pears, and kiwi. Enjoy the full spectrum of vegetables. Look for minimally-processed whole grain products without added sugar. If you're on a low-carb diet, talk to your doctor about what healthy choices will complement your eating plan.

- Quit smoking – If you have tried quitting before and failed, even a dozen times, don't be discouraged. Talk to your doctor about new smoking cessation methods, which are helping more and more people quit, even if they have smoked for decades.

- Limit Alcohol Consumption – While many people with diabetes can drink alcohol in moderation, alcohol can affect how your body uses blood sugar, resulting in either low or high blood sugar. It may also interfere with diabetes medication, particularly oral medication. Talk to your doctor about whether it's safe for you to consume alcohol.

5. Seek Timely Treatment – If your eye doctor detects signs of diabetic retinopathy, prompt treatment can help prevent serious and permanent vision loss. Treatments may include laser therapy to seal leaking vessels, injections of anti-VEGF drugs or corticosteroids to reduce swelling and slow disease progression, or, in very advanced cases, surgical procedures like vitrectomy.

Remember, most eye diseases have no symptoms at first, so never ignore any visual disturbances, even if they seem minor. Once symptoms appear, they may be a sign that a disease is progressing. Stopping eye disease before it has a chance to get worse can save your vision from permanent loss. Always seek prompt attention if any vision changes occur.

NATIONAL HEALTHY SKIN MONTH

By Dr. Ashley Cauthen

November is National Healthy Skin Month, a time to celebrate and prioritize the health of our skin. Your skin is not only the largest organ of your body, but it also plays a vital role in protecting you from external threats and reflects your overall well-being. In honor of this month, we have gathered expert tips and advice to help you maintain healthy, glowing skin all year round.

Your skin is a remarkable organ that performs numerous essential functions for your overall health. It acts as a protective barrier against harmful viruses, infections, and environmental factors. Additionally, it helps regulate body temperature and fluid balance. Taking care of your skin is not just about looking good; it is an integral part of maintaining your overall well-being.

Understanding Skin Cancer Prevention

Skin cancer is a significant concern worldwide, with one in five Americans developing it by the age of 70. It is crucial to raise awareness about skin cancer prevention and early detection. By following these tips, you can significantly reduce your risk:

- Wear Sunscreen Daily: Protect your skin from harmful UV rays by applying a broad-spectrum sunscreen with at least SPF 30 every day. Don't forget to reapply every two hours, especially when spending extended periods outdoors. Some of MidState's favorites are ISDIN Eryfotona Ageless & Actinica, EltaMD Elements and UV Clear.
- Cover Up: When spending time outdoors, wear protective clothing, such as wide-brimmed hats and sun-protective clothing, to shield your skin from direct sun exposure.
- Stay in the Shade: Seek shade whenever possible, especially during peak sun hours between 10 am and 4 pm, when the sun's rays are the strongest.
- Perform Self-Skin Exams: Regularly examine your skin for any changes, including new moles, growths, or spots. If you notice anything unusual, remember your ABC's. A- asymmetry, B- border, C- color, D- diameter (less than 10mm), E- evolving.

Dermatologist-Recommended Skincare Habits

Maintaining healthy skin requires adopting good skincare habits. Follow these expert-recommended tips to keep your skin looking and feeling its best:

1. Cleanse and Moisturize Daily

Start your skincare routine by cleansing your face with a gentle cleanser suited for your skin type. Follow up with a moisturizer that provides hydration and nourishment.

2. Determine Your Skin Type

Understanding your skin type is essential for choosing the right skincare products. Whether you have dry, oily, combination, or sensitive skin, select products that address your specific needs.

3. Protect Your Skin from Environmental Factors

Environmental factors, such as pollution and harsh weather conditions, can damage your skin. Using antioxidants, like vitamin C, can help neutralize free radicals and protect your skin from premature aging. Snag ISDIN's Vitamin C from one of our three locations.

4. Embrace the Power of Retinol

Incorporating retinol or retinoid products into your skincare routine can help improve skin texture, reduce wrinkles, and even out pigmentation. Start with a low concentration and gradually increase usage to avoid irritation. Skinbetter Sciences' AlphaRet is a great starter retinoid that's safe for all skintypes.

5. Get Your Beauty Sleep

A good night's sleep is not just crucial for your overall well-being but also for the health of your skin. Aim for seven to nine hours of quality sleep to allow your skin to repair and rejuvenate itself.

6. Stay Hydrated

Hydration is key to maintaining healthy skin. Drink at least eight glasses of water daily to keep your skin hydrated and flush out toxins. Limit alcohol consumption, as it dehydrates the skin and can exacerbate skin issues.

8. Visit a Dermatologist

Regular visits to a dermatologist are essential for maintaining healthy skin. A dermatologist can assess your skin's condition, provide personalized recommendations, and address any concerns or issues you may have.

As the winter season approaches, it's essential to give your skin some extra attention. The cold weather and dry indoor heat can lead to dryness, itching, and other skin problems. Here are some tips to keep your skin healthy and radiant during winter:

- Moisturize Intensively: Use a heavier lotion or skin cream after showers to lock in moisture and prevent dryness. Don't forget to apply a lip balm with SPF protection to keep your lips hydrated and protected from the elements.
- Protect Your Skin During Winter Sports: If you enjoy winter sports, such as skiing or snowboarding, remember to apply sunscreen with at least SPF 30 and wear protective clothing to shield your skin from harmful UV rays and cold wind.
- Be Mindful of Indoor Heating: Indoor heating can strip your skin of its natural moisture. Use a humidifier to add moisture to the air and prevent dryness.

During National Healthy Skin Month and beyond, prioritize the health of your skin by adopting good skincare habits, protecting yourself from the sun, and seeking help from MidState when needed. Remember, healthy skin is not just about looking good; it is an investment in your overall well-being. Take care of your skin, and it will reward you with a radiant and vibrant appearance that reflects your inner health and happiness.

CELEBRATING NATIONAL HOSPICE AND PALLIATIVE CARE MONTH

Submitted by Hospice of Marion County

Each November hospices around the U.S. recognize and celebrate National Hospice and Palliative Care Month. It's a way to highlight the benefits of hospice care and help bring awareness to the special compassionate and comforting care that hospice organizations provide every day.

Perspectives on death and dying may differ across various cultures, but simply having a conversation with your loved one about it can have a profound impact. While it may be difficult to ponder one's own death or that of a loved one, it is exactly these courageous conversations we should be having to ensure loved one's wishes are known before it's too late. It could mean the difference between having the type of end-of-life care desired experience, matching their values and wishes, to one that doesn't. Not knowing in advance can cause unnecessary stress for families.

When a family is coping with a serious illness and a cure is no longer possible, hospice care can provide the comfort and dignity wanted when nearing death. However, it's an all too common situation: A family is at the bedside of a loved one who is near death, unable to speak for themselves. Each member of the family has a different idea of what should be done and what the patient would have wanted.

Having a conversation with loved ones about your advance directives is a gift that leaves no unanswered questions and provides peace of mind to everyone. As part of your planning, also make sure you have shared your advance directives with your physician and family. Make sure they know where these are in your home in case of an emergency (don't keep them in a safe deposit box at your bank that only you can access).

We encourage everyone to have these conversations to start a meaningful dialogue. In fact, it's recommended that everyone do this before a medical emergency. Just like you plan for your retirement, you should plan for your death by having advance directives completed. Preparing an advance directive identifies who your healthcare surrogate is and gives your loved ones a roadmap to what your wishes are at end of life.

Many think hospice care is only when someone has a few days or weeks left to live. However, Medicare beneficiaries are entitled to 180 days of hospice care. That's six months of special comfort care only hospice professionals can provide, and Medicare provides 100% coverage of these services. When people don't receive this benefit until the final days of life, they miss out on all that hospice can offer and may end up spending difficult days in the hospital or emergency room. Hospice providers can help with information about care options and choices to ensure you live as fully as possible. They will make sure you and your loved one receive emotional, spiritual and grief support as well.

Considered to be the model for high-quality, compassionate care for people with a life-limiting illness, hospice and supportive care is paid for by Medicare, Medicaid and most private insurance plans. Make sure you are getting your full hospice benefit. Learn more about hospice care and how Hospice of Marion County can help you or a loved one by calling (352) 873-7415.

TIS' THE SEASON FOR GIFTING

Often times it may not feel like the holiday season with Florida's toasty temperatures, but don't be fooled. The holidays are here! There's an undeniable sense of anticipation in the air, as many of us are looking forward to reconnecting with friends and family.

With Christmas 2024 just around the corner, the age-old tradition of exchanging gifts and spreading joy takes center stage. This year, however, there's a growing trend that savvy shoppers are embracing – the art of shopping early. Beyond the twinkling lights and bustling holiday markets, the wisdom of starting your Christmas shopping ahead of time becomes evident. As we navigate through a world of ever-changing dynamics, early holiday shopping not only ensures access to the finest gifts but also offers a respite from the last-minute chaos, allowing for a more thoughtful and enjoyable celebration.

2024 Gifting Trends

It seems many friends and family have been under a lot of stress from the recent hurricanes, the election season and the economy. So this year, give something they can really use that is around improving wellness and mindfulness. Think self care, aromatherapy, meditation, journaling and even fitness. The great thing about wellness gifts is that they are perfect for people of all ages and enjoyed by both men and women alike.

Young children will enjoy a set of fizzy bath bombs. Your best friend will appreciate a carefully curated bath set. You can't go wrong with an aromatic collection of soaps or essential oils for a coworker. And, your significant other will love a set of comfy pajamas or muscle massagers for after a workout at the gym.

Avoid the Sweets & Drinks

Traditionally, alcohol and sweets such as chocolate and cookies, have been the "go to" gifts for clients and family members. They're easy to give, but often times they're eaten and forgotten. Or, they're simply trashed when New Year's Day rolls around, and people are purging their kitchens of all the calorie-laden gift sets. Let's face it, many of us have put on some "lb's", so do everyone a favor and skip the sweets and choose health & wellness options.

Give Experiences

Another gift idea that is on trend for 2024 is experiential gifts. This could be a trip to the spa for a relaxing massage, a facial with your local esthetician, a sunset boat cruise or an art class. Experiential gifts are memorable, and they're perfect for the person in your life who already has one of everything.

Shop Local

Although it's tempting to knock-out your list by simply shopping online, consider visiting the locally-owned stores in your community. Many small businesses and restaurants have struggled the past few years. By shopping local, you'll find truly unique gifts with a delightful shopping experience that you can't get online. Plus, you'll be supporting the fabric and diversity of your community by helping to keep local shops in business.

Skip the holiday hustle this year. Make your list. Check it twice. And get your holiday shopping done!

REGAINING CONTROL: THE BENEFITS OF EMSELLA FOR URINARY INCONTINENCE

For millions of people, urinary incontinence is an uncomfortable and embarrassing condition that can significantly impact their quality of life. Whether it's a occasional leak during physical activity or a constant struggle to make it to the restroom in time, urinary incontinence can be a source of frustration, social isolation, and even depression. However, thanks to a revolutionary new treatment called EMSELLA, those suffering from urinary incontinence now have a non-invasive and effective solution to regain control over their bladder.

Understanding Urinary Incontinence

Urinary incontinence is the involuntary leakage of urine, and it can occur for a variety of reasons. In women, it is often caused by weakened pelvic floor muscles, which can result from pregnancy, childbirth, or the natural aging process. Men, on the other hand, may experience incontinence due to prostate problems or as a side effect of certain medical treatments. Regardless of the cause, urinary incontinence can be a source of significant physical and emotional distress.

The EMSELLA Solution

EMSELLA is a revolutionary treatment that uses high-intensity focused electromagnetic (HIFEM) technology to stimulate and strengthen the pelvic floor muscles. During a typical EMSELLA session, the patient sits fully clothed on a specialized chair that delivers thousands of supramaximal muscle contractions to the pelvic floor area. These contractions are similar to the muscle contractions that occur during Kegel exercises, but are significantly more intense and efficient.

The Benefits of EMSELLA

One of the primary benefits of EMSELLA is its non-invasive nature. Unlike surgical procedures or medications, EMSELLA does not require any incisions, injections, or oral medications. This means that patients can undergo treatment without the risk of complications or side effects associated with more invasive interventions.

Another significant advantage of EMSELLA is its effectiveness. Clinical studies have shown that EMSELLA can significantly improve urinary incontinence symptoms in both men and women. In one study, 95% of patients reported a significant improvement in their quality of life after undergoing EMSELLA treatment. Additionally, EMSELLA has been shown to be effective in treating other pelvic floor disorders, such as fecal incontinence and sexual dysfunction.

EMSELLA is also convenient and time-efficient. Each treatment session lasts only 28 minutes, and most patients require a series of six sessions spaced a week apart. This means that patients can receive the full course of treatment in just six weeks, with minimal disruption to their daily routine.

Furthermore, EMSELLA is a comfortable and painless treatment. Patients may feel a slight tingling sensation during the treatment, but the procedure is generally well-tolerated and does not require any anesthesia or recovery time.

Regaining Confidence and Quality of Life

For those struggling with urinary incontinence, the impact on daily life can be significant. Simple activities like exercise, social gatherings, or travel can become sources of anxiety and embarrassment. However, with the help of EMSELLA, many patients are able to regain control over their bladder and reclaim their confidence and quality of life.

One patient, Sarah, a 47-year-old mother of two, had been struggling with urinary incontinence for years after giving birth to her children. "I was always worried about leaking, especially during exercise or when I laughed too hard," she recalls. "It was embarrassing and made me feel self-conscious." After undergoing EMSELLA treatment, Sarah noticed a significant improvement in her symptoms. "It's been life-changing," she says. "I can exercise without worry, and I feel so much more confident in social situations."

Another patient, John, a 62-year-old retiree, had been dealing with urinary incontinence as a result of prostate problems. "It was really limiting my lifestyle," he explains. "I couldn't travel or participate in activities without worrying about finding a restroom." After completing his EMSELLA treatment, John reports a dramatic improvement in his symptoms. "I feel like I have my freedom back," he says. "It's been a game-changer for me."

Conclusion

Urinary incontinence is a common and often debilitating condition, but with the help of EMSELLA, those suffering from this condition now have a safe, effective, and convenient treatment option. By strengthening the pelvic floor muscles, EMSELLA can help patients regain control over their bladder and improve their overall quality of life. Whether you're a new mother, an active adult, or someone dealing with the effects of aging, EMSELLA offers a promising solution for regaining confidence and freedom from the constraints of urinary incontinence.

Choosing a Memory Care Community

When choosing a memory care community, it's important to consider the needs and preferences of the individual with memory loss. Some factors to consider include:

Location: Choosing a community that is close to family members and loved ones can make it easier to visit and stay connected.

Size: Some individuals may prefer a smaller community with a more intimate environment, while others may prefer a larger facility with more amenities.

Services: Consider the services and amenities offered by the facility, such as specialized care, structured activities, and nutritious meals.

Staffing: Ask about the staff-to-resident ratio and the qualifications and training of staff members.

Cost: Memory care communities can vary widely in cost, so it's important to consider the budget and financial resources of the individual with memory loss and their family.

We at AdviniaCare recognize that caring for loved ones with memory loss can both be a pleasure and a challenge at times. With our memory care programs, we can relieve some of the burden off of your shoulders and create a beneficial experience for both you and your loved one.

COSMETIC DENTISTRY IS MORE THAN A PRETTY SMILE

By Richard W. Rozensky, DDS, D.ABDSM

Cosmetic dentistry, also known as esthetic dentistry, is the method of dentistry that improves a patient's smile and self-image. Having a beautiful smile and strong teeth are essential for aesthetics and overall health. An attractive smile, or lack thereof, affects your oral health. Self-confidence and how the world perceives you on the outside are important to our mental health. This is because a person's smile is usually the first feature anyone notices.

Esthetic procedures include dental veneers and teeth whitening. Dental crowns, dental bonding, dental implants, inlays and onlays, and dentures are all restorative dental treatments. Dental veneers are the most requested treatment because they can correct tooth discoloration, teeth crowding, and teeth gaps.

DENTAL VENEERS

Dental veneers are a popular method of correcting tooth imperfections such as misalignment, gaps, stains, and minor chipping. Made of a strong porcelain material designed for long-term wear, they can also reshape teeth and create beautifully symmetrical smiles that look and feel natural. Properly cared for, porcelain veneers can last for decades.

TEETH WHITENING

Professional teeth whitening is a safe, effective, non-invasive, and long-lasting cosmetic option. With laser teeth whitening, you can see results in one treatment here in our Laurel Manor Dental and SleepCare office. Another option is to whiten your teeth at home. Your custom home whitening kit includes specialized trays that will be customized to fit over your teeth. We provide professional-grade whitening gel to insert into your tray before wearing it. Your dentist will tell you how long to wear the tray each day, and you will have a bright white smile within two to four weeks.

DENTAL CROWNS

Dental crowns are caps placed on top of damaged teeth. Crowns are used to protect, cover, and restore the shape of your teeth when fillings don't solve the problem. Dental crowns can be made from metals, porcelain, resin, and ceramics. They typically don't require special care over time other than regular good oral hygiene. As we age, our teeth can get damaged. This can happen for a variety of reasons, like tooth decay, injuries, or just regular use. Your teeth can lose their shape or size. Think of the cap as a snug hat for your tooth. The crown restores the tooth's shape, size, strength, and appearance. The dental crown is cemented into place on your tooth, and it covers the visible portion of the tooth.

DENTAL BONDING

Dental bonding, sometimes called composite bonding or teeth bonding, is a procedure where your dentist applies tooth-colored resin material to the affected teeth to change their shape, size, or color. Dental bonding is less painful than other treatments because your dentist won't be working anywhere close to the pain-sensing nerve inside your tooth. In most cases, anesthesia isn't even necessary during dental bonding. Dental bonding is the most cost-effective and fastest fix of cosmetic imperfections. However, dental bonding isn't as stain resistant as porcelain crowns or veneers and can chip and crack over time with normal wear and tear.

DENTAL IMPLANTS

Dental implants are artificial tooth roots that provide a permanent base for fixed, replacement teeth. Implants are a long-term solution for people who suffer from missing teeth, failing teeth, or chronic dental problems. Implants can be one tooth or a group of teeth depending on need. Because they fit, function, and feel like natural teeth, dental implants are the gold standard in tooth replacement. Doctors use a titanium anchor screw that over time, fuses to the living bone cells of the jaw. This union forms a strong and durable anchor for your new teeth, meaning there's no slippage movement. This makes implants more secure than dentures. Eating with dental implants is also more secure and sanitary than dentures because they are not removable.

INLAYS AND ONLAYS

Inlays and onlays are indirect dental restorations. They are made outside of your mouth in a laboratory. An inlay or onlay is typically used when a cavity is too large for a simple filling. Inlays and onlays can be made of gold, composite, or ceramic materials. Inlays and onlays are more resistant to fractures and damage than traditional cavity fillings, stain-resistant and durable.

DENTURES

Dentures are an affordable tooth replacement option for those who are not a good candidate for implants. Dentures provide facial support, improved nutrition, and improved confidence. Dentures can be a full set or a partial that replaces a group of teeth generally from an injury. Some dentures are designed to improve a person's bite, eliminating headaches, jaw pain, and other TMJ symptoms. The bases of most removable dentures today are made of polymethylmethacrylate (PMMA) and the teeth themselves can be made of PMMA or ceramic material like that used for porcelain veneers.

AMERICAN DIABETES MONTH: ADDRESSING THE RISING EPIDEMIC

November marks American Diabetes Month, a crucial time to raise awareness about a condition that has reached epidemic proportions in the United States. With rates of diabetes skyrocketing over the past few decades, it's more important than ever to understand the causes, consequences, and potential treatments for this chronic disease.

The Alarming Rise of Diabetes

The prevalence of diabetes in America has been steadily increasing, with no signs of slowing down. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), over 37 million Americans—about 1 in 10—have diabetes, and 1 in 5 don't even know they have it. Even more concerning is that 96 million American adults—more than 1 in 3—have prediabetes, a condition that often leads to type 2 diabetes if left unchecked.

Several factors contribute to this dramatic rise, including:

1. Increasing obesity rates
2. Sedentary lifestyles
3. Poor dietary habits
4. An aging population
5. Genetic predisposition in certain ethnic groups

The Far-Reaching Impact of Diabetes

Diabetes is not just a blood sugar problem; it's a systemic condition that can affect nearly every part of the body. Some of the serious complications associated with diabetes include:

- Cardiovascular disease: Diabetes significantly increases the risk of heart attacks, strokes, and other heart-related problems.
- Kidney damage: Diabetes is the leading cause of kidney failure in the United States.
- Vision problems: Diabetic retinopathy can lead to vision loss and blindness.
- Nerve damage (neuropathy): This can cause pain, numbness, and increase the risk of infections, especially in the feet.
- Cognitive decline: Recent studies suggest a link between diabetes and an increased risk of Alzheimer's disease and other forms of dementia.

The economic impact is equally staggering. The American Diabetes Association reports that diagnosed diabetes costs the United States $327 billion annually, including $237 billion in direct medical costs and $90 billion in reduced productivity.

Weight Loss: A Powerful Treatment for Type 2 Diabetes

While the statistics are alarming, there's hope on the horizon, particularly for those with type 2 diabetes. Emerging research and clinical experience increasingly point to weight loss as a powerful—and sometimes transformative—treatment option.

Studies have shown that losing even a modest amount of weight, typically 5-10% of body weight, can have significant benefits:

- Improved insulin sensitivity
- Better blood sugar control
- Reduced medication needs
- Lower risk of diabetes-related complications

In some cases, substantial weight loss can even lead to remission of type 2 diabetes, effectively reversing the condition. This approach, often achieved through lifestyle changes or bariatric surgery, has shown promising results in clinical trials.

As we observe American Diabetes Month, it's crucial to spread awareness about the seriousness of diabetes and the potential for prevention and treatment. By focusing on healthy lifestyle choices—including a balanced diet, regular physical activity, and maintaining a healthy weight—we can work towards stemming the tide of this growing epidemic and improving the lives of millions affected by diabetes.

Understanding Alzheimer's Disease: A CALL FOR INCREASED AWARENESS

By David Culbreth, Senior Transitions Specialist, Realtor, SRES

Alzheimer's disease is a degenerative brain disorder that slowly erodes memory, thinking skills, and the ability to perform even the simplest of daily tasks. As the most common form of dementia, Alzheimer's impacts millions of individuals worldwide, robbing them of their independence and altering the very core of who they are. Despite its prevalence, there remains a concerning lack of awareness and understanding surrounding this debilitating condition. It is time to shed light on Alzheimer's and rally support for those impacted by this cruel disease.

The Devastating Impact

The journey of an Alzheimer's patient is a heart-breaking one. Initially, the disease manifests as mild memory loss and confusion, often dismissed as a natural part of aging. However, as it progresses, the symptoms become increasingly severe, with individuals experiencing disorientation, difficulty communicating, and an inability to recognize loved ones. Simple tasks like dressing, bathing, and eating become insurmountable challenges. Ultimately, Alzheimer's renders those affected completely dependent on caregivers, stripping them of their autonomy and dignity.

Beyond the toll on individuals, Alzheimer's disease places an immense burden on families and caregivers. The emotional and financial strain of caring for a loved one with Alzheimer's is immense, often leading to burnout, stress, and even depression among caregivers. The ripple effect extends far beyond the patient, impacting entire families and communities.

A Growing Crisis

As the global population ages, the prevalence of Alzheimer's disease is on the rise. According to the Alzheimer's Association, an estimated 6.5 million Americans aged 65 and older are living with Alzheimer's. Worldwide, this number soars to over 55 million individuals affected. Alarmingly, these figures are projected to nearly triple by 2050 without significant medical breakthroughs.

The economic impact of Alzheimer's is staggering, with the annual cost of caring for those affected exceeding hundreds of billions of dollars globally. This financial burden extends to healthcare systems, governments, and society as a whole, underscoring the urgency for increased investment in research, treatment, and support services.

Shattering the Stigma

Despite its widespread impact, Alzheimer's disease remains shrouded in misconceptions and stigma. Many individuals fear the disease, associating it with a loss of personhood and dignity. This societal perception often leads to isolation and marginalization of those affected, exacerbating the challenges they face.

Raising awareness is crucial to combating these harmful stigmas and fostering a more compassionate and inclusive society. By educating the public about the realities of Alzheimer's, we can promote greater understanding, empathy, and support for those impacted by the disease.

A Call to Action

Addressing the Alzheimer's crisis demands a multifaceted approach. Increased funding for research is paramount, as scientists continue their quest for effective treatments and, ultimately, a cure. Additionally, bolstering support services, such as respite care and counseling for caregivers, can alleviate the immense burden shouldered by families.

Furthermore, advocacy efforts play a vital role in raising awareness and driving policy changes that prioritize the needs of those affected by Alzheimer's. From grassroots initiatives to national campaigns, every voice counts in amplifying the call for action and fostering a more supportive and inclusive environment.

As individuals, we all have a role to play in this fight against Alzheimer's. By educating ourselves and others, offering support to caregivers, and advocating for increased resources, we can make a tangible difference in the lives of those affected by this devastating disease.

Alzheimer's disease is a formidable challenge, but one that can be overcome through collective action, compassion, and a unwavering commitment to supporting those impacted. By raising awareness and rallying support, we can create a society that empowers individuals living with Alzheimer's and provides them with the dignity and care they deserve.

Diabetic Neuropathy: How Physical Therapy Can Help

Roughly, 29 million Americans have diabetes. Many of these cases are undiagnosed, but for those individuals that struggle with the disease, symptoms of diabetic neuropathy can be debilitating.

Diabetic neuropathy is a progressive disease that affects nearly 200,000 new patients per year. Understanding the disease state is complex, but in short, having high blood sugar levels, along with low blood and oxygen supply, damages the nerves throughout the body. This damage generally affects the long peripheral nerves that feed sensations to the legs, feet, and toes from the spinal cord, through communication with the brain. If your condition has progressed, you may feel nerve damage sensations in your upper extremities as well.

Peripheral Neuropathy Symptoms

- Numbness
- Tingling
- Burning sensations
- Painful aching
- Joint inflammation
- Joint damage
- Balance issues
- Skin discoloration & texture changes
- Muscle cramps
- Feelings of stiffness
- Non-healing foot & ankle ulcers

Once the peripheral nerves are damaged, there is no cure. Along with medications and drug therapies, there are proven methods to lessen the symptoms of peripheral diabetic neuropathy. Physical medicine provides alternative therapeutic and rehabilitating procedures that can offer significant pain relief and limit drug dependency. Physical therapy helps with balance and can reduce the risk of falls.

When you have diabetic neuropathy, your feet and legs can feel so numb that you may trip, fall and injure yourself just by trying to get through normal daily activities. This can be dangerous for obvious reasons. Along with dietary changes, orthopedic shoes and compression stockings, physical therapy can help.

Physical & Occupational Therapy Benefits

- Manual stretching
- Hip & Ankle Alignment Strategies
- Decompression
- Massage therapy
- Electrical nerve stimulation
- Help with daily tasks & Living
- Cold laser treatment

Patient & Occupational Education is critical to alleviate further injury and to promote the most efficacious healing. Coupled with family participation, self-help management to promote and maintain independent function, and mobility is critical.

Physical therapy is used to help with numerous indications and conditions like retraining the body to improve gait and balance and also after hip, knee or shoulder replacement and so much more. There is no better way to alleviate pain, increase range-of-motion and live a more mobile higher quality of life than through physical & Occupational therapy.

Navigating End-of-Life Decisions: The Role of Hospice Palliative Care and Strategic Planning

By Steve Schneider, MBA - CEO, Securenet Financial, LLC.

As we navigate the complex journey of life, we inevitably confront the reality of mortality. When faced with terminal illness, the importance of hospice palliative care becomes clear. This specialized medical care focuses on providing relief from pain and other distressing symptoms, enhancing the quality of life for patients and their families. However, beyond medical support, thoughtful estate and legacy planning can significantly ease the financial burdens that often accompany end-of-life decisions.

Understanding Hospice Palliative Care

Hospice palliative care is designed to provide comprehensive support to individuals with life-limiting conditions. Unlike curative treatment, which aims to eliminate the illness, palliative care prioritizes comfort, dignity, and quality of life. This approach can be initiated at any stage of a serious illness and involves a multidisciplinary team, including doctors, nurses, social workers, and spiritual advisors.

The goal of hospice care is not just to manage physical symptoms but also to address emotional, social, and spiritual needs. Families are often involved in care decisions, allowing for open discussions about preferences and wishes. This holistic approach creates an environment where patients can feel safe and supported, ultimately leading to more meaningful end-of-life experiences.

The Financial Implications of End-of-Life Care

While hospice care provides essential support, the financial aspects of end-of-life decisions can be daunting. Medical bills, potential long-term care expenses, and funeral costs can accumulate rapidly, creating additional stress for families during an already challenging time. This is where strategic planning—specifically estate and legacy planning—becomes vital.

Estate Planning: Establishing a comprehensive estate plan ensures that your assets are managed according to your wishes. This includes drafting a will, setting up trusts, and designating powers of attorney. These legal documents help clarify your desires regarding asset distribution, healthcare decisions, and financial management, minimizing confusion and disputes among family members.

Legacy Planning: Legacy planning goes beyond just managing assets; it involves determining how you want to be remembered. This could include philanthropic endeavors, family traditions, or specific messages you want to pass down to future generations. By addressing these aspects, you provide a framework for your loved ones, helping them to honor your legacy while navigating their grief.

Retirement Planning: A solid retirement plan is equally crucial. By anticipating healthcare needs and potential end-of-life expenses, you can create a financial cushion that alleviates some of the burdens on your family. Long-term care insurance, health savings accounts, and retirement accounts can all play significant roles in ensuring you have the resources necessary to cover your needs without placing financial strain on your loved ones.

The Interconnection of Care and Planning

The synergy between hospice palliative care and financial planning cannot be overstated. When individuals have a well-thought-out plan in place, they can focus on the emotional and relational aspects of their care rather than being overwhelmed by financial concerns. This holistic approach enhances not only the quality of care received but also the overall experience for families during a difficult time.

Open Communication is Key

Engaging in open and honest conversations with loved ones about your wishes is essential. Discussing your preferences regarding medical care, financial decisions, and legacy intentions can alleviate the burden on family members during a crisis. Encourage family members to express their thoughts and feelings as well, creating a supportive environment that fosters understanding and compassion.

Seeking Professional Guidance

While it may seem daunting, the process of estate and legacy planning can be streamlined with the help of professionals. Financial advisors, estate planners, and hospice care coordinators can provide invaluable assistance in crafting a comprehensive plan tailored to your unique situation.

Their expertise can help you navigate the complexities of legal and financial issues, ensuring that your desires are honored.

Conclusion

As we confront the inevitable, integrating hospice palliative care with thoughtful estate and legacy planning can make a significant difference in the lives of both patients and their families. By addressing medical needs while also preparing for the financial and emotional challenges of end-of-life decisions, individuals can foster a sense of peace and control during a tumultuous time.

Ultimately, this proactive approach not only enriches the patient experience but also creates a lasting legacy of love and consideration for future generations. In the end, it's about more than just planning; it's about ensuring that our final chapters are filled with dignity, comfort, and meaningful connections.

Stress Management Tips from Quick Care Urgent Care

If you have bouts of anxiety, stress, fear and nervousness, you're not alone. Stress and anxiety are a normal part of life and usually short-lived, but for 40 million Americans, it's a daily battle. Whether it's anxiety due to biological, psychosocial, or post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), the treatment options usually include behavioral therapy, counseling, and various prescription medications that block or dull different areas of the brain.

The typical treatment options for anxiety, stress and depression are medications and counseling therapy. Some of the most common drug classes prescribed are selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors, serotonin-norepinephrine reuptake inhibitors, tricyclic antidepressants, and monoamine oxidase inhibitors. Widely known drugs, like Prozac, Zoloft, and Cymbalta effect how neurotransmitters affect the mood by lessening anxiety levels and creating a more serene outlook on life.

Medications are not always the best choice for all individuals and many people pair alternative methods with anti-anxiety drugs or alone to help stave off stressful episodes.

Take Time for Yourself

It might be difficult, but carving out time to relax, take a bath, take a walk or simply shut yourself in the a separate room for 10 minutes to do deep breathing exercises can reduce anxiety significantly and over time, you will most likely notice that these personal care methods will help you to become calmer throughout the day.

Get Moving

Talk with your physician about the right exercise plan for you. Most people can benefit from taking a brisk 30-minute walk or a 30-minute swim. Exercise increases circulation, reduces stress, it also improves nutrient and oxygen rich blood flow, and helps you build strength and to lose weight. If you can work out harder, it's extremely beneficial to get your heart rate up daily with cardiovascular exercise.

Meditation

Yoga helps to improve flexibility, blood flow, muscle strength, posture, immune function, bone health, decreases depressive episodes, and can regulate blood pressure. Meditation also reduces stress, reduces anxiety, promotes emotional wellbeing, can help fight addictions, can generate health and improve immune function. it can stave off memory disorders and increase neuronal plasticity.

In order to overcome stress and pain, we need a well-rounded treatment protocol that incorporates, medication (if necessary), stress management, nutrition, exercise, meditation, hormone balancing and other therapies that can help to stabilize our systems.

ENJOYING THE HOLIDAYS IN ASSISTED LIVING

By Janice Martin, owner of Senior Liaison of Central Florida Inc.

Making the decision to move to assisted living is difficult. There is no denying it's life changing. One of the questions I frequently hear is, "when will I know it's time?" Although you may know in your heart that the time has come, there is still reluctance to take that next step.

Conversations will have a similar pattern. In April, they may have made the decision to move forward but resist scheduling a date. "Dad's birthday is in May. Let's wait until after his birthday." In June, "His grandson is graduating and he really wants to go. Let's wait until he gets back" In July, "His granddaughter is getting married, let's wait until after that." In August, "Their anniversary is in September and they need to be together one last time." In October, "We're not ready because there's too much to do." And in November, regardless of the circumstance, there's the big one.... "The holidays are coming and we really want them to have one last Christmas together in their home."

There will always be something. There will never be a time when all the planets are in alignment and the transition will be perfect. You will never "be ready." The reality is that your loved one can still participate in all these celebrations and events when they're in assisted living! That does NOT have to change because they always have the freedom to come and go wherever and whenever they wish. For a few hours, a day, a weekend, or an extended visit out of town.

But the holidays? The #1 misconception is that it will be sad and lonely. However, the holidays are the BEST time to be in assisted living! For weeks ahead of time there is something exciting happening. There is traditional music, special foods to enjoy, people visiting, and there is a happy energy in the air. Families are invited to a community Thanksgiving feast and everyone feels like family as they celebrate together. The residents often meet ahead of time, and THEY determine the menu to include family favorites.

And the decorations?? I doubt you will ever see so many gorgeous Christmas trees! They are everywhere all over the building but the one in the lobby will be the crème de la crème! There are also beautiful menorahs to light, dreidels to enjoy, celebrations, and opportunities to learn about traditions of other religions and regions.

Many years ago, I began my career as an activities director. The first Christmas I worked in a community was quite an eye-opener. I put up and decorated over 10 different trees on every floor, in the lobby, in the dining room, in the activity room - everywhere! I didn't realize this requirement when I was hired, but it was actually fun (and exhausting!) and each tree was a little different. (Hint: after the holidays, cover the decorated tree with a large trash bag, and put it in the garage or empty room. Next year will be much easier!)

Communities will often have an indoor "Festival of Trees" or a "Festival of Wreaths" as a charity fundraiser. Local businesses will purchase a tree or wreath of various sizes and bring it to the community, decorate with a different theme, to be on display and enjoyed for several weeks. The trees will be auctioned, and the highest bidder gets to decide the charity and take the tree home. A community in Ocala does a spectacular event each year to benefit the Alzheimer's Association. There are easily 50+ trees of all shapes, sizes, and themes, followed by a live auction. All the residents participate by enjoying the fun, food, drinks, and excitement!

There are also gingerbread house competitions. I organized one and provided the basic kit to local businesses and departments at the assisted living. They used their imagination to think outside the box for an original creation. The residents were the judges, and the winner got bragging rights. My community had other facilities across the country. There was a company-wide competition to produce the most magnificent one. The final creations were enormous and elaborate and the residents enjoyed watching them come to life. During this competition, there was no limit to the size, but the "house" had to be made from scratch in the community's kitchen. One project actually had a model train running around and through it!

There are also outings on the community bus to look at the Christmas lights, followed by hot cocoa and cookies upon return. Even though a person is in assisted living doesn't mean it will be their last holiday to enjoy and you may be pleasantly surprised that it could be one of the most memorable. I challenge you to convince me that sitting home alone through the holidays with nothing but a turkey TV dinner and a rerun of "It's A Wonderful Life" can begin to compare. If a resident would like to spend time at their family's home, they are welcome to do so. However, it's often overstimulating for many seniors who have difficulty with the (loud) competing conversations and children running everywhere.

In my experience, the holidays are the best time to be in assisted living. Your loved one will be active and busy enjoying the variety of celebrations and the company of others - with the option to simply return to their private apartment to quietly reflect on the things for which they are most thankful.

INTERVENTIONAL PAIN MANAGEMENT IS WELL BEYOND MEDICATION MANAGEMENT ALONE

By Brent Compton, MD

Chronic pain is a debilitating condition that affects millions of people worldwide, significantly impacting their quality of life. While traditional pain management strategies, such as medication and physical therapy, can provide relief, interventional pain management offers a more targeted and minimally invasive approach to addressing the root causes of pain. In this article, we'll delve into the world of interventional pain management and explore its role in the comprehensive treatment of chronic pain.

Interventional pain management is a specialized field of medicine that focuses on diagnosing and treating various types of chronic pain through minimally invasive techniques. These procedures are performed by highly trained physicians, often pain management specialists or anesthesiologists, who use advanced imaging techniques and specialized equipment to target specific areas of the body responsible for pain.

One of the primary goals of interventional pain management is to reduce or eliminate pain while minimizing the need for oral medications, particularly opioids, which can have significant side effects and carry the risk of addiction. By targeting the source of pain directly, interventional techniques can provide long-lasting relief and improve overall functionality.

The decision to pursue interventional pain management typically follows a structured pathway, beginning with conservative treatments and progressing to more advanced interventions as necessary. This pathway can be visualized as a decision tree, guiding patients through the various options available to them.

At the most basic level, patients may begin with non-invasive treatments such as chiropractic care, physical therapy, massage, and home exercises. These approaches aim to alleviate pain through manual manipulation, stretching, and strengthening exercises, often addressing musculoskeletal issues or improving overall mobility.

If these initial treatments prove insufficient, the next level may involve medications and imaging tests. Pain medications, including over-the-counter and prescription options, can provide temporary relief, while imaging techniques like X-rays, MRI, or CT scans can help identify the underlying cause of pain and guide further treatment decisions.

When conservative methods and medications fail to provide adequate relief, interventional pain management techniques become a viable option. These minimally invasive procedures include:

- 1. Epidural steroid injections: These injections deliver corticosteroids directly into the epidural space of the spine, reducing inflammation and providing pain relief for conditions such as herniated discs, spinal stenosis, or radiculopathy.
- 2. Facet joint injections: Targeted injections into the facet joints of the spine can alleviate pain caused by arthritis or injury in these joints.
- 3. Radiofrequency ablation: This procedure uses heat generated by radio waves to disrupt the transmission of pain signals from specific nerves, providing long-term relief for conditions like chronic back or neck pain.
- 4. Spinal cord stimulation: Implanted devices deliver electrical impulses to the spinal cord, modulating pain signals and providing relief for various chronic pain conditions.
- 5. Nerve blocks: These injections involve the administration of medication, such as anesthetics or steroids, near specific nerves to block the transmission of pain signals.

If all other interventions fail to provide adequate relief, surgery may be considered as a last resort. However, interventional pain management techniques often allow patients to avoid or delay the need for surgical intervention, reducing the risks and recovery time associated with major procedures.

It's important to note that interventional pain management is not a one-size-fits-all solution. Each patient's condition is unique, and treatment plans are tailored to address their specific needs. Pain management specialists work closely with patients to develop comprehensive treatment strategies, combining interventional techniques with other modalities, such as physical therapy, medication management, and lifestyle modifications.

In conclusion, interventional pain management offers a promising solution for individuals suffering from chronic pain. By targeting the source of pain directly through minimally invasive techniques, these procedures can provide significant relief and improve overall quality of life. As awareness of these techniques continues to grow, more patients can benefit from this comprehensive approach to pain management.

At The Interventional Pain Institute, each patient's pain is thoroughly evaluated and a customized treatment plan is developed. Dr. Compton and his team are dedicated to treating every patient with the utmost respect and care, with a mission to help patients regain functionality and improve their quality of life.

What's Your Diet?

By Pastor Roger P. Felipe

Weight-watchers. Nutrisystem. Mediterranean diet. Paleo. Living healthy has become a craze, although obesity in our country, rather legitimizes it. For many people it is about looking and feeling better, living longer, stronger and disease-free. These are all important reasons for eating clean, exercising, and learning to rest our bodies sufficiently.

For Christians, however, trying to maintain healthy habits finds its motivation in more than adopting diet fads to longevity and better quality of life. Taking care of our bodies is stewardship. That is, it is a reflection of our recognition of having been created by God, and how our lives can be instruments in his hands to serve and honor him on earth. Of course, God can use both the healthy and the unfit for his purposes, including the sick, feeble, and dying. Human worth and value is not in question.

The reality is that our earthly lives are only a speck in the sands of eternity. However, Christ followers understand that life doesn't belong to them. It is a gift from a Good Father who entrusted them with a brief span of years that should be invested in loving others and making our world a better place. For those who have believed in Christ and experienced God's forgiveness of sin, the reason for taking care of their bodies goes beyond living longer and healthier. It's about honoring Jesus Christ with all of life, including the way they take care of their bodies.

In his book, "The Unknown God: Searching for spiritual fulfillment," Oxford University professor, Alister McGrath, describes the parable of Plato's Cave, a story about people enslaved inside the cave oblivious to the reality that existed on the outside beyond the flickering shadows which they knew. That is, until the day someone was able to find their way out and discover a world beyond description, a world of beauty and splendor. McGrath writes, "Our desires have become attached to things that are little more than shadows, when they are meant to be attached to something which cannot decay or disappoint" (32).

How does this relate to healthy living? Focusing on living healthier and longer, like any other pursuit we might obsess about, really reveals a spiritual longing in our souls for something more: eternity. Whether is it longing for a "perfect" relationship that often disenchant, earthly riches that can quickly vanish, or a healthy and strong body that is suddenly brought to a standstill due to an unexpected medical report, our hearts are longing for something beyond what this world can provide.

McGrath probes us to consider this question: "Suppose our longing for fulfillment points to something we have yet to discover? What if our yearning is a clue to the meaning of the universe?" (10). Taking care of your body and staying healthy is a good thing, but it isn't everything. The truth of the matter is, whatever we pursue in life has a way to deceive us to think that by attaining "it" our lives will be complete. They're not. Deep inside a voice continues to remind us that our longings for fulfillment are like signposts in the sky pointing us to something beyond ourselves. Could that something (Someone) be our Creator?

May you achieve physical well-being and wholeness. But may you also discover the gift of eternal life which Jesus promises to all who believe and trust in him alone. "...I have come that they may have life, and have it in abundance" (John 10:10). I would enjoy exploring with you the meaning of life and God.
